Symposia should at most last one and half an hour (1h30) and should not be composed of more than four communications.

A Free Communication should at most last twenty minutes (20mn).

Abstracts can be submitted until the 31th of March 2011.

And the notification of the accepted abstract on April 11, 2011

A scientific committee will assess the proposal and will decide whether the abstract is refused, accepted as it is or, if need be, with recommended modifications. A notification of the committee decision will be sent to applicants.

CONTRIBUTION TYPES*

The contributions can be submitted choosing one of the following five options:

FC. Free Contributions:

Individual free contributions, related to the general theme or the various sub-themes of the conference, should be submitted using the specific abstract form integrated in the registration procedure.

The conference Scientific Committee may group the contributions of similar themes in the same session or may decide that a group of Free Contributions will be selected to form a Symposium, or a Thematic Discussion Group.

S. Symposia:

A Symposium consists of a set of contributions. The symposia should preferably focus on relevant theoretical issues regarding the theme of the conference. The organizer of the proposed symposium should select the participants, submit the proposal including the summary of the symposium, the names, the affiliation and the abstract of each contributor and using the abstract submission form integrated in the registration procedure.

Presentations by interdisciplinary or inter-institutional teams are especially welcome.

TDG. Thematic Discussion Groups:

A Thematic Discussion Group consists of a set of contributions. The TDG will preferably be based on completed relevant research regarding the theme of the conference. The organizer of the proposed TDG will select the participants, submit the proposal including the summary of the TDG, the names, the affiliation and the abstract of each contributor and using the abstract submission form integrated in the registration procedure.

Presentations by interdisciplinary or inter-institutional teams are especially welcome.

PIS. Poster Interactive Sessions:

A poster interactive session consists of individual contribution that each participant will submit
